

The Relationship Between Heroism and Psychopathic Personality Traits

SMU REB File #22-063

Tara Joly, and Dr. Patrick Carolan

This study was developed to assess whether if heroism (selfless behaviour) is related to fearlessness, impulsivity, and callousness, traits that are associated with psychopathic personality. Additionally, we intended to compare the relationship of these traits in three different groups of people, undergraduate students, alcohol industry employees, and cannabis dispensary employees. Due to extenuating circumstances, we were unable to collect data from enough participants to perform our planned analyses, and the project has ended.
